About our Speaker

Dr Roslyn Neilson is a Private Speech-Language Pathologist, specialising in children with reading difficulties. She runs a private clinical practice, has worked in local schools and schools in remote Indigenous communities, provides university lectures and professional in-services, and devotes time to research. Wed 2nd April 2014: Dinner Presentation 6pm

Topic: Speech Difficulties and Literacy: The Good, the Bad and the Fuzzy.

If children aren’t pronouncing words clearly, does this affect their reading? The answer is that it depends on the kinds of errors that children are making. This discussion will outline the kinds of speech patterns that teachers can be on the lookout for in the classroom, and will present some suggestions about what teachers might do when a child’s speech doesn’t sound right – suggestions for supporting literacy learning as well as speech.

Dr Neilson’s presentation will be followed by a Q&A panel. Pre reading will be supplied to participants attending the Thursday event.

Topic: Literacy Difficulties: Getting the Phon back into Phonics.

When children struggle to learn to recognise and spell words, their problem typically involves not a visual difficulty, but rather some weakness at the level of phonological processing. The weaknesses may be subtle, and it is very easy to take it for granted that children have the relevant skills that support learning to master the alphabetic code. This workshop will explore aspects of phonological processing that are relevant in the context of learning to read and spell. Guidelines will be provided for assessing the skills, and for supporting children who are finding the task difficult, using teaching strategies that can complement any reading program.

VENUE: Multicultural room International House,

TIME: 12.30 to 4pm
